and given a seat among the spectators. When Mr. Rand asked the boy to look around and see if he could pick out the man he saw with Miss Patterson, Mr. Levy objected to the identification being made in that way, and told Recorder Goff that Hewitt was shown Smith at the time of the latter's arraignment before Judge Foster several days ago. Smith was then brought to the bar and the boy positively identified him.

"He's learned his lesson well," remarked Smith as he was led back to the Tombs.

Cab Driver's Story Different.

John Crowley, a Harlem cab driver, teetified that on the morning of June 4 he saw the defendant, Young and Wilsiam Luce at Eighth avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street. Young winted her to go into the cab, and upon her hesitating he pushed her in and directed Crowley to drive to the St. Paul hotel. On the way Crowley looked into the cab and saw the girl was crying.

Young Slapped the Girl.

Under cross-examination witness said Young siapped the girl's face when he pushed her into the cab and said he would knock her head off Young was drunk. Another cab driver told of driving Young and Luce to the latter's home after the girl had left in Crowley's cab.

Wild Scene in Corridors.

Wild Scene in Corridors.

There was a wild scene in the corridors around the courtroom this afternoon. Men and women fighting for admittance after the roon recess blocked the passageways tore each other's clothes and so jammed the entrance that Recorder Goff made his way through only with the greatest difficulty. The attorneys in the case were obliged to enter the courtroom from side entrances. The jurors fought their way through the struggling, pushing crowd at the courtroom entrance.

Mrs. Morgan Smith, Nan Patterson's sister, was called to the witness stand during the afternoon session.

Mrs. Smith was on the stand only a moment. She was asked to identify a letter addressed to Ada Patterson as written by her sister. This she did.

Meeting Before Tragedy.

Meeting Before Tragedy.

The story of the meeting between Young and Miss Patterson in Harlem the night before the tragedy was told by William Luce, Youngs brother-in-law, Young was at his home in West One Hundred and Fortieth street, and they went out together about 11 delock. They met Miss Patterson in Eighth avenue, Luce said he left Young and Miss Patterson together and went home, with the understanding that he would meet them an hour later. At 1 o'clock he returned and all three went to a saloon.

They Were Quarreling.

"We got in there about a quarter past I o'clock," said Luce, "and at a quarter to 3 o'clock they came over to the table where I was sented. They had been together for nearly two hours, and were angry and quarreling."

"Did you hear any of the conversation?"

I heard Young say he would get her a cottage "When they came over to your table what was the conversation about?"

Could Not Get Away From Her.

"About Young's going away. The defendant said she knew the heat he was going to sail on, and said that he could not get away from her. Young offered to bet her $100 that she could not name the boat, but she replied that she would not please him to do so. She said Young could not hide from her, and if he got down in the hold of the ship she would find him and prevent him from sailing." Denies Buying Revolver.

Luce said he saw Young before he left home on the morning of June 4. He said he was going out to get shaved and huy a new hat, and that he would join his wife at the steamship pier. Luce, in reply to a question by Mr. Rand, denied that he purchased the revolver at Stern's pawnshop.

Refused to Go Abroad.

Bernard L. McKean, another brother-in-law of Young told of efforts made by Young early in May to get Miss Patterson to go to Europe. He said she first promised to go abroad, but afterward refused to sail, claiming she was in delicate health, and would have to undergo an operation. McKean also told of Julia Smith's letter to Young falling into Mrs. Young's hands.

Letter Caused the Trouble.

Letter Caused the Trouble.

The intercepted letter was discussed by the defendant and Young in his presence, McKean said, and Miss Patterson deciared that it had caused all the trouble. He said that Young had arranged to supply Miss Fatterson with all the money she needed, through the witness. "She would not listen to this arrangement," said McKean. "She said she did not want to go away from Frank."

Throughout the entire day Nan Fatterson followed the testimony with more intense interest than on previous days, and when adjournment was announced she caressed her father and remarked. "I think this has been a good day for me."

LAW REGARDING PRIZE FIGHTS

Prohibits Glove Contests.

No Contest in the Ring Is Regarded as Law-

News Attempts a Distinction Because Joseph F. Smith Witnessed Gory Contest.

On the evening of April 17, a prize fight between George Gardner, ex-light heavyweight champion pugilist of the world, and one Mike Schreck, an aspirant for puglilatic fame, took place at the Salt Loke theater. The hierarchy owns and controls the theater, and Joseph F. Smith, president, prophet, seer and revelator of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and trustee in trust of all its property, was present at the prize fight ins a spectator. At this prize light there were two events. The preliminary was to be a ten-round fight between two boys. After these young men had fought several rounds, one of the fighters was so badly beaten and battered that the Chief of Police stopped the fight. When the Chief of Folice interferred the poor little fellow who lost was staggering about the ring with one eye entirely closed and the other so badly bruised that he could hardly see. His lips were split and bleeding, his nose was bleeding, his face was bruised and battered and blood covered his body. His opponent, with blood-scoked gloves, was trying hard to strike him a blow in some vital point that would knock him senseless to the floor, or, in the language of the prize ring, knock him out.

Appetizer for Big Fight. the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day

Appetizer for Big Fight.

Appetizer for Big Fight.

But this feast of blood, bruising and brutality was only an appetizer for what followed. The principal event was a twenty-round fight between Gardner and Schreck. These giadiators smashed, battered and hammered each other for twenty rounds, each round lasting three minutes. There was one solid hour of bloody, brutal fighting. For weeks before the fight each man had been advertised as a hard hitter, a man with a knockout punch, a man with a record for knockouts, a glutten for punishment, a flend for fighting, a terror in close quarters, etc. The records of the fighters were published, showing how many victims each man had knocked out or beaten to insensibility in his fighting career. It was well known to every man, woman and child in Salt Lake City that the two fighters were professional pugs, imported for the special purpose of engaging in a prize fight at the Salt Lake theater, and that the purse or proceeds of the fight was to be divided in such a manner that the winner of the fight would receive more than the loser.

News Calls It Boxing.

News Calls It Boxing.

In the face of these facts the Descret News, the official organ of the Mormon church, being unable to deny the notori-ous fact that President Joseph F. Smith was at this fight, sitting close to the ring, in the "church" box, has made a feeble attempt to show that the prize fight was only a boxing content. Section 43% of the Revised Statutes of 18% is as follows:

Here Is the Law. Every person who engages in instigates encourages or promotes any ring or prize-fight or any other premeditated fight or contention, without deadly weapons, either as principal, aid, second, umpire, surgeon or otherwise, is punishable by imprisonment in the State prison not exceeding two years.

If the fight between Gardner and Schreck was not a prize fight there can be no such thing.

be no such thing.

Gloves Barred by Law. In the cose of Commonwealth vs. Mc-Govern, 75 Southwestern Reporter, page 261, the Supreme court of Kentucky holds that a glove contest, such as President witnessed, is a simon-pure prize In the course of its opinion the court says:

Nor will the use of gloves by the combatants in a price-fight make such combat any less an offense in the eyes of the law. The sayll designed to be remedied by the statute is that class of brutal exhibitions.

Marquis of Queensbury Rules. And speaking of the straight Marquis of Queensbury rules (under which the Gardner-Schreck prize fight was "pulled off") the court says: "The brutal frankness of these rules manifests without extrinsic evidence the character of the fighting provided for therein."

Glove Contests Prize Fights. The same is held in State vs. Olympic club, 17 Southern Reporter, 559. There the court says: "The glove contests permitted in defendant's club are advertised extensively and are generally known as prize fights. All courts hold that the fact that gloves are used does not rob a prize fight of its character." State vs. Purtell, 43 Pacific, 782.

Either Gloves or Fists.

A prize fight is a prize fight regard-less of whether gloves or bare fists are used, and regardless of whether it is for a limited number of round or to a finish. 23 Am and Eng. Enc'y Law, page 196. And to this every sensible person may add that a prize fight is a prize fight whether the president of the Mormon church is at the ringside or elsewhere. News Always Evasive.

News Always Evasive.

In trying to show that the most typical prize fight that ever occurred in this locality was only a tame boxing bout, the Deseret News exemplifies its genius for the lying, deception, evasion and trickery by which it protects, denies and excuses polygamy, unlawful cohabitation, fornication and other lilicit sexual relations, by calling all crimes by their wrong names. So long as the News can invent new names for crimes the existence of new cases of polygamy will be denied.

ST, PETERSBURG, April 26, 11:25 p. m. - American superiority over foreign rivals again triumphs in the complete success which has crowned the visit of Charles M. Schwab to St. Petersburg. Mr. Schwab's negotiations with the Russian Admiralty have resulted in the practical conclusion of an arrangement for the construction of a number of formidable line of battleships of a type which probably will startle the world. Mr Schwab will leave St. Petersburg tomorrow.

The details of the construction of the versels remain to be worked out, but in addition to those which will be built in the United States it is quite likely that a yard will be constructed at a Baltic port to be manned by Russian workmen, but under American engineering and mechanical supervision, the Russian Admiralty being extremely anxious to utilize the rehabilitation of the navy for the encouragement of the ship-building industry at home, in order to eventually render the country independent of foreign yards.

It is understood, however, that not all the ships will be built by the Bethlehem company, as the time for delivery is a factor. Russia desiring that the ships be turned over as early as possible. While the Bethlehem company will supply the armor and ordinance, other American yards, therefore, will profit in the construction of the buils.

To Cultivate Closer Relations.

This is in accordance with the wishes of the Admiralty, the Russian authorities in placing such a large contract having no desire to arouse hostilities among rival commercial interests in America, the aim being not only to take advantage of American genius in building up the Russian navy, but distinctly to cultivate closer commercial relations between the two countries.

WAR AIDS WOMEN DOCTORS.

Czar Grants the Sex All Privileges Before Restricted to Men. The Woman's Medical institute in St

The Woman's Medical institute in St. Petersburg, on its foundation, was halled as the only place in the world where a woman could take out medical degrees. It was unendowed and was kept going by voluntary subscriptions and by the sacrifices of professors, whose zeal was even greater than their skill.

But though it was looked toward by many as a beacon of advance, the school in reality had only a trembling vitality, knowing well that the lifting of the eyebrow of any powerful personage was enough to send it tumbling down. As a matter of fact, the school was closed in 1886 by the minister, Warrowsky, and was not reopened until eleven years later, when it lived on, if possible, in a more trembling condition than before.

It has now assumed a sudden importance. It has been brought from its struggiling retirement. All the world has been told of its existence and called upon to give it recognition. An edict from the Czar has given it a status and a substantial grant. Its students get all the privileges hitherto available to men.

The reason of this sudden change of official attitude is that the war is taking all the Russian men doctors, and if their places are not supplied the country is at the mercy of any epidemic that would come along. Hence the thoughtfulness and the generosity which has been suddenly developed toward the woman doctor.

The glass manufacturers laughed at the compacts by the process was slow. Investigation Into Death of Mrs. Maynard Discloses This.

An investigation conducted by the Sheriff' ffice into the death of Mrs. Jane Maynard in South Jordan Tuesday afternoon leads to the conclusion that it is a case of suicide. Mrs. Maynard was the wife of a sheepman and the mother of a number of small children. She was a very nervous woman and had more or less trouble keeping her household in order. On several occasions, it is said, she had threatened to take her life. Tuesday afternoon she made this threat good by swallowing the contents of a bottle of strychnine. She was dead before any one knew what she had done. There is no doubt in the minds of the officers that she was temporarily deranged. She leaves seven children, the oldest of whom is 17.
